Brandy Price enjoys focusing on the details of each case, breaking down complex circumstances in order to best advocate on behalf of her clients. Building strong relationships with clients is one of her favorite parts of practicing law.

While in law school at the Charleston School of Law, Brandy served as president of the Black Law Students Association and was selected to serve as the Charleston Law Ambassador. During her time at UNC Chapel Hill, she was named a UNC Public Service Scholar, completing over 400 hours of community service.

Brandy enjoys volunteering with her church, serving as the Young Adult Missionary Chair as well as the local Christian Education Director. When not practicing law or volunteering, she enjoys singing, reading, and spending time with family and friends.
